From the Editor:

We are entering the time of year when the Archives and History Library may have a handful of patrons one day, but be packed the next as people travel through and/or visit West Virginia and take advantage of the opportunity to look up just one more record. We chuckle when the official family genealogist rushes in and declares that whoever is driving has given him/her an hour to find Aunt Helen’s marriage record, and groan when a beginning family historian visiting from Alaska announces that he/she has one day to track all of the clan’s West Virginia ancestors. Never fear, though—we stay as busy in the winter as in warmer seasons because everyone who stays home writes research letters to us instead!

INTERVIEWS WITH WEST VIRGINIA VETERANS

The West Virginia Veterans Memorial located on the State Capitol grounds is dedicated to over 10,000 West Virginia veterans who died during a time of war or recognized hostile action in the 20th century. The West Virginia Veterans Memorial Archives was established by the Legislature to collect biographical information about those memorialized through the monument. In association with the Library of Congress and its American Folklife Center, the West Virginia Veterans Memorial Archives also is collecting and transcribing oral interviews with West Virginia veterans. The stated purpose of the project is “to collect the memories, accounts, and documents of war veterans from World War I, World War II and the Korean, Vietnam and Persian Gulf Wars, and to preserve these stories of experience and service for future generations.” The interviews will remain in the West Virginia Archives, while the names of those interviewed will be forwarded to the Library of Congress. The American Folklife project also includes the experiences of non-combat veterans and of those non-veterans who served war-time needs on the homefront, such as Red Cross volunteers and aircraft factory workers.

While the West Virginia project is most actively soliciting interviews with World War II and Korean War veterans at this time, all categories of experience are welcome. If someone is unable to travel to the Cultural Center for an interview, Pat Pleska, manager of the Veterans Memorial Archives, will make a trip to the interviewee’s location. Pat prefers to schedule several interviews per day when traveling, so she encourages veterans to invite others in the area with stories to join in. If a veteran does not care to give an audio-taped interview, a questionnaire form is available. Several public libraries have arranged interview sessions in their communities. This would also be a good project for high school community service hours, Boy Scout or Girl Scout badge requirements, local chapters of veterans’ organizations, or historical/genealogical societies.

JENKINS PLANTATION MUSEUM
1860 HOLIDAY PARTY

The Jenkins Plantation Museum, located in the Green Bottom Wildlife Management Area of Cabell County, will be hosting an 1860 Holiday Party on Saturday, December 14, from 4:00 to 8:00 p.m. The event is free and open to the public. Period re-enactors in costume will talk to visitors about how the holidays were celebrated during the Civil War. Children’s activities will include an opportunity to make gifts and to decorate outdoor holiday trees. After touring the historic Jenkins homestead, be sure to enjoy refreshments in the parlor. The Jenkins Plantation Museum is operated by the West Virginia Division of Culture and History. For additional information, visit our Web site at http://www.wvculture.org, call Stan Bumgardner at (304) 558-0220, Ext. 121, or call the museum at (304) 762-1059.
