

WEST VIRGINIA DIVISION OF CULTURE & HISTORY

From the Editor:

I don't know if there are more history-related events occurring in West Virginia, or if simply more organizations are doing a better job of notifying me of their events in time for inclusion in our calendar, but I am very happy to see the Calendar section of Archives and History News has grown. Even more than the quantity of events listed, the quality, depth and variety of programs and speakers is impressive. I hope the time and effort expended by our historical societies and civic organizations is being rewarded by sizeable appreciative audiences at these presentations. Personally, I wish I had a private helicopter so I could hop around our richly historied state and attend them all! Looking for a great event for your society? Read about the Upper Vandalia Historical Society in this issue.

The Combat Scenario: Early West Virginia Coal Mining's Culture of Danger, April 6, by Dr. Paul Rakes

By Mary E. Johnson

Dr. Paul H. Rakes, historian, will present a program on the culture of danger in early coal mining on April 6 from 6:00 p.m. until 7:30 p.m. in the Archives and History Library in the Culture Center. West Virginia coal miners died in unprecedented numbers in the late 19th and 20th centuries. Danger became an integral component of the mining experience and influenced official acceptance of the high death rate. Rakes will compare the early West Virginia coal industry with 19th-century battlefields and consider the "combat mentality" that became ingrained in the subculture of the underground world.

Rakes is a third-generation miner who was born in a West Virginia coal camp and worked twenty years in the coal industry before obtaining a master's degree in history at Marshall University. In 2002, he received a

Ph.D. in history from West Virginia University, where he specialized in Appalachian history and concentrated on coal politics, technology, and disasters in West Virginia. Rakes is the author of several articles on the mine industry, including an essay on the subject of his April 6 lecture that was published in the book Culture, Class and Politics in Modern Appalachia (2009). His current research focuses on everyday violence in the early coal camps, and

History Bowl Debuts April 27 at Culture Center

The West Virginia Division of Culture and History (WVDCH) has called all eighth graders to test their West Virginia history knowledge in an exciting new challenge—the West Virginia History Bowl Tournament. Teams of students from around the state will face off in an academic bowl competition that focuses on West Virginia history, literature, arts, architecture, geography and culture. "The Division of Culture and History, the Archives and History Library and the State Museum are rich with information about our wonderful state," said Commissioner Randall

Reid-Smith, of the WVDCH. "This will give eighth grade students another opportunity to explore our state's heritage by connecting their classroom studies with a fun, competitive experience. The Archives and History section supports the Golden Horseshoe program, offering online services such as daily trivia questions, quick quizzes and 'On this Day in History.' Now that the West Virginia State Museum is open, we have another great opportunity to showcase our state's history as we do at West

2010 History Heroes Online

On History Day at the Legislature, February 18, 2010, 44 people selected by historical groups across the state were honored as West Virginia's History Heroes in the Norman L. Fagan State Theater in the Culture Center. History Heroes are honored for their dedication and hard work on behalf of local history, genealogy, preservation and museum organizations. Photographs and brief biographical sketches of History Heroes for 2010 are now available on the Archives and History Web site at <http://www.wvculture.org/history/histhero.html>. You will also find information for past years' honorees, 1997-2009.

Upper Vandalia Historical Society's "Show and Tell" on April 25

The Upper Vandalia Historical Society conducts a highly popular "Show and Tell" at its April and October quarterly meetings, with the next one occurring on April 25. Members and non-members alike are invited to bring an item that is interesting in itself, or has an interesting story to go with it. The presentations are limited to three to five minutes each so everyone can have a turn (usually 25 to 40 people attend) and are videotaped to preserve the stories for posterity. Examples of past items:

- A woolen vest knitted by Bill Wintz's grandmother for his uncle to wear with his WWI uniform and that Mr. Wintz subsequently wore under his

 Virginia Independence Hall in Wheeling and Grave Creek Mound Archaeological Complex in Moundsville."

All public and private schools and home school organizations were invited to submit applications for four-person teams of eighth graders with a school faculty sponsor. Sixteen teams were chosen by a regionally-based random lottery to participate in the event. "We've selected eighth graders for this challenge since they are studying West Virginia history and preparing for the Golden Horseshoe exam," said Bryan Ward, assistant director of Archives and History. "We think this is an added opportunity for them to demonstrate their knowledge of the state during a year when they are concentrating on our history." Ward said the questions for the history bowl will be similar to the questions found on the Archives and History Quick Quizzes [<http://www.wvculture.org/history/trivia/quizzes.aspx>] and Daily Trivia questions [<http://www.wvculture.org/history/trivia/trivia.aspx>].

The History Bowl will take place on Tuesday, April 27, at the Culture Center, State Capitol Complex, in Charleston. Single elimination competition rounds will begin at 9:00 a.m. and continue throughout the day, with the finals competition in the afternoon. Attendance by the public to view the competition is free. Prizes will include a trophy for the winning school and the school's name on a perpetual trophy to be housed in The Culture Center, as well as History Bowl patches and lapel pins for all competitors. For complete information regarding the tournament, visit <http://www.wvculture.org/historybowl/2010.html>.

Volunteer Opportunities at Archives and History

In the Archives: Many of you tell us you would love to work in the Archives. Here's your chance, via a great volunteer opportunity. We need a volunteer to process the speeches, press releases and statements from the Senator Jennings Randolph Collection. Work involves removing paper clips from papers, placing materials in acid-free folders, labeling the folders, and typing the folder titles into a text document.

From your location: Even more of you tell us you would love to volunteer, but you don't live in Charleston or are unable to come during our working hours. Here's your opportunity also. We have a project you can work on from your home or other location outside the Culture Center. We need a volunteer to type the text of newspaper articles about the 1960 presidential campaign in West Virginia to be placed online on the Archives and History Web site. This is a time sensitive project for an online exhibit that will premiere by the first of May 2010. We will provide photocopies of the newspaper articles. Our volunteer will need a computer with either Word or WordPerfect, and the capability either to send the finished documents by e-mail or to physically deliver them on a storage device such as a flash drive.

For more information, contact Joe Geiger, Archives and History director, at (304) 558-0230 or joe.n.geiger@wv.gov.

Permission to reprint articles from West Virginia Archives and History News is granted, provided:

- (1) The reprint is not used for commercial purposes, and
- (2) the following notice appears at the end of the reprinted material: Previously published in West Virginia Archives and History News, [Volume and issue numbers], [Month, Year], a publication of the West Virginia Division of Culture and History.

For a list of upcoming First Tuesday events, offered the first Tuesday of every month, visit <http://www.wvculture.org/history/workshops.html>. All Archives and History workshop and lecture sessions are free and the public is invited to attend. As usual on event evenings, the library will close at 5:00 p.m. and reopen at 5:45 p.m. on April 6 for participants only. To register in advance or for more information, contact Robert Taylor, library manager, bobby.l.taylor@wv.gov, (304) 558-0230, ext. 163. Participants interested in registering by e-mail should send their name, telephone number and the name and date of the session.

Changes to Our Web Site

By Mary E. Johnson

We have made some changes and additions to the Archives and History Web site that we hope will make the site a little easier to navigate. On our main page (<http://www.wvculture.org/history/archivesindex.aspx>), we have added links under "Welcome: West Virginia Archives and History" for Visitors, Research Requests, Volunteers, Contact Us, Finding Information, and "What's Happening at West Virginia Archives and History." Adding these links near the top of our home page is intended to let users quickly access some information about Archives and History without having to search for it.

At the same time, we are in the process of modifying pages under History Center. With the dramatic increase in the amount of material

Guidelines for Events in the Archives and History News Calendar

The editor of West Virginia Archives and History News selects the events printed in the newsletter calendar from sources she finds herself and from notices e-mailed, mailed or telephoned to her by event organizers and sponsors. The criteria for inclusion are as follows:

- The event must be history and/or genealogy-related. Preference is given to events directly related to West Virginia history and genealogy.
- Regular meetings and annual meetings of historical, genealogical or other societies and organizations are only published if the meeting includes a speaker or other presentation that meets the previously stated criteria.

- Notice must be received by the 15th of the preceding month for consideration of inclusion in the next issue's calendar. Although online readers and visitors to the Archives Library will have immediate access to each issue, other readers will not see it for a couple of weeks or more until mailed copies reach their organization or library, so publication in newsletters at least one month before the month of the event is advisable. Events that occur during the first week of the month should appear in the previous two months for better response. Most regular press releases, although sent in time for regular newspapers to print, are received too late to be included in Archives and History News.

- We depend on event sponsors to notify us. We would love to read all the society newsletters every month and pick up event news, but we just don't have the time. Send us event dates as soon as you set them. If you do not have full information yet, we can still list the date with the caveat of "details to follow" or "speaker to be announced." This is especially important for genealogy fairs and major events for which you would like to attract visitors from outside your community.

Notices of regular history and genealogical society meetings, as well as special events, can be submitted to Mary Johnson in writing, either by e-mailing mary.e.johnson2@wv.gov or by regular mail to the agency address, for inclusion in our Upcoming Events and Meetings Web page, <http://www.wvculture.org/events.aspx?Agency=Archives&Subcategory>. Archives and History Genealogy Club Continues to Meet Weekly

The Tuesday Morning Genealogy Club and Workshop, a weekly gathering sponsored by the West Virginia Archives and History Library, which held its first meeting in January 2010, continues to meet in the Library Reading Room in The Culture Center. The purpose of the free club is to provide personalized help to people wishing to learn genealogy research techniques and use of the Archives Library resources in order to better record their family history. Archives and History staff will be on hand to get people started and to help them navigate their way through the process. Most Tuesdays we will offer a brief program regarding a record group or search strategy, such as newspapers, military records, photographs, HeritageQuest Online, surname and clipping files, etc. Check our Web site, <http://www.wvculture.org/news.aspx?Agency=Archives&Id=1255>, to see scheduled topics and speakers. Also, we invite representatives of genealogy societies to introduce themselves and talk about their services.

Although designed for beginning genealogists, everyone is welcome to participate. More experienced researchers have been attending in mailings regarding West Virginia History Day at the Legislature and History Hero nominations.

Contact West Virginia Archives and History News editor Susan Scouras at susan.c.scouras@wv.org, (304) 558-0230, ext. 742, or by mail to the agency address. Please do not add her to your newsletter mailing list as a means of event notification—send specific event descriptions only, with your own contact information in case of questions by the editor or the reading public.

Microfilm Reading Room Improvements

The Microfilm Reading Room of the Archives and History Library has received another upgrade of the counters for the microfilm readers and reader-printers. New built-in counters have replaced the old ones in another section of the room in order to accommodate the larger size of the new machines that have replaced some of the older ones. Visit the Archives and History Newsroom to view photos of the completed work, and of the fantastic Division of Culture and History crew that designed the counter and performed the installation.
